

CHEMI MONTES-ARMENTEROS

Chemi Montes is currently the Graphic Design Program Director at American University in Washington D.C. He obtained his MFA in Graphic Design at The Pennsylvania State University, and his BA in Graphic Design and Audiovisual Media at the University of Salamanca, in his country of birth, Spain. Chemi taught design at Penn State prior to a brief period in the industry. His professional experience encompasses print, video and film graphics and web design. A combination of agency and freelance practice has allowed Chemi to work with a diversity of clients ranging from small businesses and non-profits to Fortune 500 companies. His work has received awards in design competitions and juried annuals, as well as appeared in several design books and design periodicals, including Graphis Logo, Applied Arts, How, Step, and Print. He also has published writings on design and semiotics, one of his areas of research.